12:00PM – 1:00PM

Intimate partner violence (IPV) affects millions of individuals across the United States, with nearly 1 in 4 women and 1 in 9 men experiencing severe physical violence, stalking, or psychological aggression by an intimate partner.

In this session, we will focus on how health centers can effectively leverage existing DRVS tools and explore new functionality to improve IPV screening, tracking, and care coordination, ultimately enhancing patient outcomes and ensuring high-quality care delivery.

Participants of this webinar will learn:

- How to identify patients due for IPV screenings using DRVS tools
- How to track patients who have screened positive for IPV and ensure appropriate follow-up
- How to integrate IPV data with other clinical and non-clinical factors to provide comprehensive, patient-centered care

CHCANYS is pleased to present a two-part webinar series designed to strengthen the capacity of community health centers to identify and respond to Intimate Partner Violence (IPV). This initiative will provide participants with a framework for building sustainable internal protocols, collaborating with community-based organizations, and incorporating practical, evidence-based approaches into day-to-day integrated care delivery.

Webinar Series Overview

Participants will gain the knowledge and tools needed to improve identification of IPV, engage in meaningful community partnerships, and develop workflows that support patients who have experienced or are at risk of IPV. Each session will provide clear, actionable strategies to support health center teams in building a coordinated response.
